ENGROSSING REPORT

Your Engrossing Clerk to whom was referred—

SB 94 with 2 amendments	SB 241 with 2 amendments
SB 199 with 2 amendments

—reports that the Senate amendments have been incorporated and the bills are returned herewith.

ELMER O. FRIDAY, Secretary

The bills were certified to the House.

The Journals of April 6 and 5 were corrected and approved.

Senator Barron moved that upon conclusion of the joint meeting this day, the Senate adjourn to reconvene April 10, 1973 at 8:30 a.m. for the purpose of introduction and reference of resolutions, memorials, bills and joint resolutions and thereafter to reconvene at 9:00 a.m. The motion was adopted.

On motion by Senator Barron, at 1:25 p. m. pursuant to HCR 3-ORG, the Senate proceeded to the chamber of the House of Representatives for a joint meeting to receive a report of the Chief Justice on the state of the judiciary for the year following reorganization of the court system of Florida after ratification of revised Article V of the State Constitution, and to participate in the conferring by Florida State University of an honorary degree of Doctor of Humane Letters upon Allen Morris, clerk of the House of Representatives.

The Justices of the Florida Supreme Court and members of the Florida Cabinet were received and seated.

The Speaker invited the President of the Senate, Mallory E. Horne, and the President Pro Tempore, Louis de la Parte, to the rostrum and requested the President to preside over the joint meeting.

The President in the Chair.

The President declared a quorum present.

Prayer by Philip F. Ashler, former member of the House of Representatives and Executive Vice Chancellor of the University System:

Almighty and Eternal God, Supreme Architect of the Universe, we humbly beseech thee to bless the courts of justice and the magistrates in all this land, give unto them the wisdom of understanding that they may discern the truth, and impartially administer the law, in fear of thee, alone. Help those of us governed by their decisions to understand that men dedicated to justice oftentimes stand alone.

We are thankful, O Lord, for men freed from the bondage of self interest, pride and arrogance; place around their shoulders a mantle of courage and wisdom that they may continue to serve the people of this State with dignity and in humility. We ask thy divine guidance for such men, as here today we honor one among them. Let his sense of honor, duty and responsibility of government serve as a benchmark by which others may take measure of their work.

This we ask in the name of our Saviour and the Messiah of Israel. Amen.

The joint assembly pledged allegiance to the flag of the United States.

On motion by Representative Dubbin a committee was appointed to notify the Governor that the joint meeting was assembled to hear the report to the Legislature by Chief Justice Vassar B. Carlton. The President appointed Senators Williams, Poston and Brantley, and the Speaker appointed Representatives Craig, Ogden and Tillman. The committee withdrew.

The committee appointed to wait upon the Governor reappeared escorting His Excellency, the Honorable Reubin O'D. Askew, Governor of Florida, who was escorted to the rostrum.

The President acknowledged the presence of Mrs. B. F. Carlton of Cocoa, mother of the Chief Justice; Mrs. Jack Crockett of Tallahassee, sister of the Chief Justice and Mrs. Mollye F. Bradshaw of Orlando, longtime friend of the Carlton family.

The President presented the Chief Justice.

On motion by Representative Dubbin, the following was ordered spread upon the Journal:

REPORT TO THE LEGISLATURE ON THE STATE OF THE JUDICIARY

By Chief Justice Vassar B. Carlton

For The

SUPREME COURT OF FLORIDA

Mr. President, Mr. Speaker, Governor Askew, colleagues of the Supreme Court, members of the Cabinet, members of the Legislature, ladies and gentlemen:

By grace of your invitation it is my privilege to speak with you today on behalf of the judicial branch of our state government. We have much to report in the way of progress. But we also have much to ask of you.

The enormous changes in our court structure mandated by the people on March 14th of this past year have been carried through with great success. We can report to you that the judiciary, the Bar, and all those involved in our justice system share the view that the transformation of our courts under revised Article V of our State Constitution is progressing smoothly toward completion. Our new court system is working exceedingly well, and our judicial business is being conducted with dispatch.

In developing a philosophy of judicial administration under revised Article V, we have taken the view that the key element is responsibility at the local level. Our procedural rules have been amended to make the Chief Judge of each judicial circuit the chief legal officer charged with providing speedy and efficient administration of justice in his circuit. The Chief Judge is to maintain a liaison function in all judicial administrative matters with the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, who is now the chief administrative officer of the judicial system. We pledge to you a philosophy of decentralized administration except in those areas where statewide guidance is required.

During the period of transition thus far completed our Supreme Court has endeavored to ease the burdens of change by passage of several temporary Transition Rules. We have required an audit of all cases transferred from the old system to the new so that no case would be lost through administrative inadvertence. We have provided for the transfer of files between the old and the new court systems in a manner conducive to administrative efficiency. In accord with your statutory mandate, we have created a case disposition reporting system. We have established a procedure for the determination of costs in municipal cases heard in county courts.

Other Transition Rules of note include the approval of trial by affidavit for pending misdemeanor cases now prosecuted in the new county courts; the recognition of municipal ordinances as proper subject matter for judicial notice; emergency procedural rules for juvenile cases; and, emergency changes in methods of prosecution.

In a continuing effort to keep abreast of local procedures, yet with an eye toward statewide uniformity, we have also approved a host of local rules submitted by all of our various jurisdictions.

In addition to the adoption of all these measures, your Supreme Court has now completed a substantial revision of numerous rules of procedure, including those relating to summary claims, probate and guardianship, and civil and criminal matters.

But the major contribution to the effort has been made by our lower courts. With the enthusiastic cooperation of all concerned, they have successfully managed the transfer of 4500 juvenile cases, 44,500 small claims court cases, 154,000 county and county judges' court cases, 220,000 traffic, municipal, justice of the peace and magistrate court cases, 69,000 courts of record cases, and 94,000 circuit court cases into the new two-tier trial court system. As of January 1st, at the moment of revision, the new circuit courts were born with an instant pending caseload of 226,000 cases. The county courts were born with an instant caseload of 360,000 cases.

What have we learned from this experience? Working through these times of change we have learned that all elements of the justice system need to be tied into a unified effort. We have learned to share experiences with public defenders and state attorneys and law enforcement and corrections officials, as well as with judges and clerks. We have become more keenly aware of the need to increase the funding for public defenders and state attorneys as well as the need to provide for a rational system of compensation for court reporters and their deputies. The impact of these officials on the administration of justice is immediate and dramatic, and adequate support and fair compensation for them is imperative.

We have learned the need for experienced personnel both in the clerks' offices and in the areas of court administration. Training being an absolute necessity, we shall endeavor to provide a system of instruction for judicial personnel consistent with principles of economy and effectiveness. We have seen that we need to examine case docketing practices so that uniformity of docketing can be established throughout our unified court system. This project has been assigned to our State Court's Administrator along with the project of undertaking a uniform records survey. Additionally, we have invited our Administrator to provide us and you with impact studies regarding legislation affecting the judiciary.

There are two additional areas of our operations which deserve special comment: first, the case audit required under Transition Rule 2; and second, the development of the case disposition reporting system. The audit rule provided us for the first time with a listing by case number and by date of filing all cases pending in all jurisdictions in the State of Florida as of December 31, 1972. These were the cases carried forward into the new system on January 1, 1973.

An examination of these reports has revealed that in many jurisdictions cases have been left open on the dockets which cannot be realistically considered as active and pending. In one jurisdiction, we discovered cases considered as pending which were filed as far back as 1897. In another jurisdiction we uncovered thousands of misdemeanor cases going back as far as 1910 which were simply cluttering up the dockets. Happily, we can report that the majority of our jurisdictions have run a tight ship and it is apparent that several have taken the opportunity to purge ancient cases during this time of transition. Your Chief Justice is now in the process of inviting the various Chief Judges to immediately purge all cases which cannot be realistically considered as pending. Dismissals of this nature are amply provided for under our procedural rules. Hereafter we will be able to keep all of our dockets more current because by June we intend to have all pending cases within the State entered into our new computerized reporting system.

Last year you enacted a requirement that the Supreme Court develop a uniform case reporting system. After much field research and constant communication with the clerks of our state, a highly qualified team of professionals, working under the direct supervision of the Court and the Court Administrator's Office, developed a case reporting system which went into effect January 1st of this year. Our first task, which could not have been achieved were it not for the absolutely splendid cooperation of the Florida Department of Law Enforcement, was to create a flow of information based on immediate need and usefulness. This phase of the case reporting system is now nearing completion. Within a few months we hope to establish pilot studies in representative circuits and counties which will allow us to test out additional information programs and to gain experience with the concept of caseload weighting. In our view, endeavors along these lines are of little value unless directly useful to the effective administration of justice, either on the state or the local level. Our highest priority is in returning to the local jurisdictions management information which they cannot now achieve on their own.

An additional task for the near future will be the interconnection of our system with the informational systems used by our state attorneys, public defenders, and law enforcement and corrections officials. Although there is much diversity in the information needed by the courts and these other components of our justice system, there should be much common ground that we can cover together.

Let us now turn our attention to the additional judgeships recommended to you at the outset of this session by certification from the Supreme Court.

One year ago, again by your gracious invitation, the Honorable B. K. Roberts, who was then Chief Justice, spoke with you about judicial manpower needs under revised Article V. He told you then that these first few years were to be viewed as a period of orderly transition. There were to be three fundamental projections as to manpower needs. The first, our best estimate, was given to you last year and accepted by you with only minor modification. The second projection, that which we will discuss today, is based on our first two months' experience along with an extended analysis of numerous other factors, including historical case flow trends in our lower courts. The third report in this series, which will be presented to you next year, shall be based upon a full year's experience with the revision.

As to this year's recommendation, out of twenty-nine county judges and eight circuit judges requested by the Chief Judges below, we have thought it necessary to recommend creation of only fifteen additional county judgeships and two additional circuit judgeships.

County Judges have been recommended as follows:

- 7 for Dade County;
- 2 for Hillsborough County;
- 1 for Palm Beach County;
- 1 for St. Johns County;
- 1 for Marion County;
- 1 for Osceola County;
- 1 for Leon County; and
- 1 for Seminole County.

The recommendations for Circuit Judges are:

- 1 for the 10th Circuit; and
- 1 for the 19th Circuit.

Our Constitution requires the Supreme Court to determine by rule uniform criteria for the determination of the need for judges in our judicial system. We are in the process of developing these criteria according to neutral standards of review applicable to all jurisdictions uniformly and without favor. We have taken into consideration the following:

1. changes in population,
2. traditional caseload trends over the past several years projected by the Judicial Council forward for the next three years,
3. the January and February case flow reported on the case disposition reporting system,
4. geography,
5. the effect of the abolition of municipal courts,
6. traffic patterns,
7. transient populations,
8. the increase of the number of attorneys in the various jurisdictions,
9. the availability of judges for cross assignment,
10. the lawyer or non-lawyer status of the judges in each jurisdiction,
11. economies of scale,
12. the averaging of caseloads per judge for statewide comparisons,
13. comparisons with comparable jurisdictions,
14. the impact of Criminal Procedure Rule requirements,
15. and the changes likely to result from the creation of additional judgeships.

Although we have included the case disposition reporting system figures as a factor in the calculus, we recognize the limitations attached to these figures. The sample size is relatively small and the figures are somewhat seasonal in nature. A greater reliance was placed upon the projections provided by the expertise of the Judicial Council based upon the Council's experience with caseload data collected over several years' time.

As a matter of policy, we felt an obligation to recommend to the Legislature an increase in judgeships, even if not requested by the Chief Judge of the Circuit, where our neutral standards of review have indicated that additional judicial manpower should be allocated.

We also recommend that the state accept responsibility for the salaries of the seven county judges now in office, but still paid by the counties. These judges were grandfathered in for the remainder of their unexpired terms after their old judgeships were abolished.

We anticipate updating our recommendations by amended certificate in approximately two weeks after the March caseload reports come in to the Judicial Council and to the State Court's Administrator's Office. It is possible that revision upwards or downwards of the number of judges thus far recommended may occur at that time. The recommendations and thoughts passed on to us by the Chief Judges carry great weight and all will be examined again in light of the new figures we shall soon receive. We ask your indulgence in this.

The Constitution also requires that the Supreme Court pass on to you recommendations about the boundaries of our Judicial Circuits and our District Courts of Appeal. Although the need for changing any of the present boundaries has not been demonstrated to us, we will continue to give this matter our close attention.

There is one final matter relating to the determination of the need for additional judgeships which deserves comment. As we update our caseload information in an orderly fashion, we need to know for our projections the workloads of the various municipal courts which are not yet prepared to pass ordinances of abolition. In the past, we have been unable to find any reliable central clearing house for information on municipal courts. Although we have compiled lists from various sources, even now we do not think we can report accurately on the existence of these courts. Your legislative attention to this matter is invited.

Let us now talk about the most important order of business before us today. On March 14th of last year, when the people mandated the revision of Article V, they also mandated the total emergence of the judicial branch as an independent part of our great tri-partite form of government. The judicial independence so overwhelmingly approved shall not truly be ours until the state accepts full fiscal responsibility for the administration of justice. The essential business of our courts is the enforcement of state laws and the resolution of litigation required to be heard in a state level forum. Since all of courts are integral parts of our statewide judicial machinery, the obligation of the state to bear the costs involved goes beyond the level of judges and reaches down to all of the support personnel working within the system.

Today is not the first time you have been asked to provide state funding for matters which truly transcend local boundaries. In an earlier part of this century, you recognized that public health was a state responsibility because the services rendered were of statewide importance. Similarly, you replaced local funding of road construction by state financing when it became apparent that effective transportation was a matter of statewide concern. And not too many years ago, your creation of the Minimum Foundation Program signaled your recognition that the teaching of our children was of statewide significance.

The time has come for you to recognize that the business of our courts has a statewide impact no less significant than matters of public health, the construction of our roads or the instruction of our children.

Prior to making this proposal, we have studied it with all of the seriousness that such an issue warrants. Since December the office of the State Court's Administrator has been carefully surveying the personnel needs of the judicial system. The precise results of this survey shall be presented to you in your committee and sub-committee sessions. Today we are concerned simply with providing an overview. The results of the studies undertaken have been analyzed by a nationally known personnel consultant from the Institute for Court Management. Additional analysis has been provided through the sustained efforts of five qualified and experienced clerks from representative areas of the state.

As a consequence of these efforts, a schedule of funding responsibilities for court reporters, bailiffs, deputy clerks and judicial secretaries, as well as for judges and clerks, has been developed by the office of the State Court's Administrator. This schedule takes into consideration salaries, job responsibilities, social security and retirement contributions and other employee benefits.

At the present we have determined that there are approximately 4,200 persons staffing roles within the judicial system. Of these, 876 are now fully paid from state revenue. We are asking that the additional 3,324 employees remaining in the balance also be fully funded by the state. It should be noted that the positions discussed here do not include those relating to the offices of the state attorneys or of the public defenders.

A special comment needs to be made about the funding of the elected clerks of court. As you know, they are now paid at the county level. They are an integral part of our judicial system and should be participating in state funding. However, in view of the fact that they share many responsibilities relating to the administration of county level government, any funding must take into account the separate nature of their duties. Rather than dictate our view of their position, we herewith invite them to participate in this venture on their own initiative.

To date we have examined roughly, but with appreciable accuracy, the positions and costs involved within a general range of acceptability. We now must ask that you grant us a special appropriation, effective immediately, so that we may finance intelligent planning and preparation necessary for the implementation of total funding of the judicial branch as of January 1, 1974. We feel it is imperative that we establish a personnel system responsive to our needs and tailored to the specifications of the judicial branch. A unified system cannot be pulled together until this is done. We are extremely grateful to the Department of Administration for the expertise they continue to give us and the assistance they so readily lend. However, we are of the view that the executive branch cannot effectively exercise administrative responsibility of classification and personnel management for positions not operationally responsible to it. We desire to develop a professional spirit within the judicial system as a whole appropriate to its position as a separate branch of government.

Now, in terms of dollars and cents, let me explain exactly what we are asking for. Presently we are carrying a budget of some 34 million dollars, which is but 1-1/2% of our state budget for the coming fiscal year. To this current cost we ask that you add an immediate special appropriation for an additional $500,000 to cover planning and preparation for total state funding of the judicial branch beginning January 1, 1974.

On that date, we expect to bring onto the state rolls the 3,324 persons now staffing the judicial system at the expense of local units of government. The addition of these people would then require an expenditure of 14.5 million dollars for the remaining two quarters of the coming fiscal year, above the costs currently covered. This sum should be set aside as a special appropriation for use beginning January 1, 1974.

The sum total expended on the judicial branch for Fiscal Year 1973-74 should, in the ultimate, come to approximately 49 million dollars. This would include the 34 million currently budgeted, the $500,000 for the preparation and implementation study, and 14.5 million for assumption of the obligation for total funding as of January 1st. The full effect would not be felt by the state until the Fiscal Year 1974-75 when the estimated total budget would amount to 65 million dollars for a full year's operation of the judicial branch. Even this latter sum is but approximately 3% of our state budget based on current figures. It should be noted that the national average for state judicial budgets is approximately 3%, and this includes states that provide for less than full funding.

Our calculations of costs have included one and one-quarter million dollars now supplied by the federal Law Enforcement Assistance Administration. Your actual appropriation will be reduced by that amount for this coming fiscal year. We are willing to take advantage of federal moneys for the funding of innovative programs so that we may economically determine their usefulness. Should programs financed in this fashion prove operationally successful, we would then expect the state to assume fiscal responsibility and the federal participation would then cease.

It is important to note that we believe that filing fees and costs should go to the state, but fines and forfeitures, which are so important to local government, should continue to be retained at the local level. Furthermore, we are not asking that you now fund operational or facility costs other than for the District Courts of Appeal and the Supreme Court (which have traditionally been expenses of the state). However, in future times, you would do well to complete your obligations by assuming the costs of all facilities used by the judicial branch.

In closing, a few other matters should be touched upon. The law libraries, which are operational costs not covered in our estimates, ought to be funded by the state. Also, the retirement system for county judges, a cost we have calculated, should be restructured to allow them to participate in the state retirement system now used by our other judges. And let me pass on to you the appreciation of the Supreme Court for your assistance in helping us repair and renovate our building. A sum for this purpose has been included in our own budget.

We have available for your consideration facts, figures and statistics relating to all of the matters commented upon here today. You are invited to make inquiries at our offices in the Supreme Court Building. Mr. James Ueberhorst, our State Court's Administrator, Colonel Arthur Core, Director of the Judicial Council, and Mr. William Falck, my Executive Assistant, stand ready to assist you.

Today we have reported to you that Article V's revision is progressing smoothly. We have related to you our experiences and shared with you some of the goals we have for our judicial system. You have been most gracious in offering me this opportunity on behalf of the judicial branch. We compliment you and the executive department of our government on your willingness to participate in our great venture of judicial reform.

Today we ask you to continue in this spirit of cooperation and assist us in securing an independent judiciary. In return we pledge to you a system of justice truly worthy of the people of this sovereign state.

Thank you.

DEGREE AWARDING CEREMONY—ALLEN MORRIS

The President presented Dr. Stanley Marshall, President, The Florida State University.

President Horne: Ladies and gentlemen of the House of Representatives and the Senate of Florida, and distinguished guests on this floor and in the gallery, I am exceedingly proud to convene this joint meeting now as an honorary degree ceremony for the Honorable Allen Morris.

It is my high honor as we begin this ceremony to present to you the distinguished President of The Florida State University. First of all I would say to you as my colleagues that he is a man who possesses an abundance of academic degrees and accomplishments, he has an international reputation in that regard and has directed the National Science Project in Turkey, and his work there served and continues to serve as a model. He has a reputation of reshaping the science teacher education program. Academically, his record is without end.

But more importantly, I would say to you as I introduce this warm friend of mine that when he came to the helm of The Florida State University the circumstance he found was chaos. I intend no hint of fault on the part of any person or persons including my own community: I will have to report to you that the morale of the student body there was explosive and volatile. I will have to say that the morale at Florida State University had degenerated to the point where I saw no way, really, that we could continue to pursue the lofty ambition that you and the distinguished Board of Regents had ascribed for us, and that members of the administrative part of that institution were hastening to find places in other institutions that exhibited stability. I have to say that my community was reacting in less than great fashion in that hour of chaos, and that in short order as you have seen so many times in so many other atmospheres, we called loudly for leadership—and up stepped this man, small in stature but great in heart and determination, emanating from no less a spot than Slippery Rock, and sliding from that vantage point into that tremendous role. I have never before seen a man who carried such lofty academic role, exhibiting such marvelous acumen and balance in the political and administrative atmosphere.

He has cohesed all of those units. The university is a smooth team. With a big smile, a warm handshake, and a perseverance that no one questions, he has led us to the point that I can tell you town and gown now reflects great pride on all of your ambitions for a great institution. Because he is also a warm, personal friend of mine, and because I am one of his greatest admirers, I am delighted with this high privilege of presenting to you the Honorable Stanley Marshall, President of The Florida State University.

Dr. Marshall: By means of its discreetly guarded right to award its honorary degrees, the Florida State University reveals the values for which it stands. It is not a matter, therefore, which we take lightly. In our 125 years of history, we have awarded such degrees to only 41 persons. It is a small fraternity—a select group of men and women who have earned distinction, each in his own way, but who share the quality of dedication to the welfare of others.

The man we have come to pay tribute to today has earned a place of honor in this fraternity. His dedication to the State of Florida, the magnitude of his contribution, and his quiet humility, make him a source of great inspiration to all who are associated with him.

It is fitting and fortunate that this man should choose to serve the people of Florida by serving two institutions which are uniquely linked, mutually dependent on each other and on the kind of dedication and inspiration he exemplifies. These institutions are, of course, the state government of Florida and the Florida State University.

It is therefore also fitting that—for the first time in the history of both institutions—the University he so ably supports awards an honorary degree during a joint meeting of the Legislature he so faithfully serves. In a way what we do today symbolizes the attainment made possible through cooperation and mutual commitment to the people of Florida.

Will the Academic Vice President, Dr. Daisy Parker Flory, please escort the candidate forward.

Dr. Flory: I would like to present Mr. Allen Morris, for the Honorary Degree of Doctor of Humane Letters.

(Mr. Morris stood by the lectern and Dr. Flory was behind him. The citation was read by President Marshall who then conferred the degree.)

CITATION:

Allen Morris, loving son and dedicated servant of the State of Florida, archivist, journalist, chronicler, and participant in Florida history and Florida government. You have written, "It is my hope that I have been able to contribute to a sense of state pride and awareness among Floridians: those born here and, as yet, the still greater number who have adopted Florida as their home."

The recognition which we give today declares our belief that you have fulfilled that hope. You have contributed to a sense of state pride as a journalist recording and reporting the current history of the state. You have contributed as an historian pointing to Florida's ancient "span of unbroken history," and as an author whose Florida Handbook has been a primary source for all who seek to know and understand Florida government.

You have contributed to the state as an archivist for you have established at the Florida State University a State Photographic Archives, an on-going documentary collection, now containing more than 60,000 individual pictures. Recognizing that you were "racing against the erosions of time to preserve scenes of lasting human value," you have made and continue to make scholarly use of your wide knowledge of state history to amass and organize the unique Florida Photographic Archives which helps the University serve the world of scholarship and the State of Florida.

You have also contributed to a sense of state pride because you have been a participant as well as a chronicler. You were a pioneer as a capital correspondent and helped to establish the principle that the people of Florida can be well governed only if they are well informed. As a participant, you were able to bring to the consciousness of the people of the state the existing conditions at the Florida Farm Colony and this awareness led to the evolution of our present Sunland Centers.

You were one of the early voices calling for prison reforms in Florida and the modifications which have made them more humane are in part the result of your efforts.

You were among the first to campaign for equitable legislative pay and you have been deeply involved in constitutional revision and governmental reorganization. Surely, none can doubt that the enviable reputation which the Florida Legislature now enjoys among the legislative bodies of the Republic is in some good measure the result of your labor.

Again, you have written: "Today, the love of Florida as 'home' flows strong. Florida's children know now of the brave deeds and great men and women of the state's past. Florida's citizens are far better informed about their state and its government (I believe, than their predecessor generations)."

We are convinced that this love and pride and improved understanding is in part the handiwork of Allen Morris. Therefore, we as officers of the University stand in this historic Chamber of Government to recognize the accomplishments of an exemplary citizen and public servant. Upon the recommendation of the faculty of The Florida State University and by virtue of the authority vested in me by the State Board of Education and the Board of Regents, I hereby confer upon you the degree, Doctor of Humane Letters.

(The President handed the diploma to Mr. Morris. Mr. Morris removed his cap and was hooded by Dr. Flory.)

Dr. Morris responded as follows:

Governor Askew, Governor Collins, Chief Justice Carlton, President Horne, Speaker Sessums, Speaker Rowell, Speaker Pettigrew, Speaker Turlington, President Marshall, President

O'Connell, distinguished members of the Supreme Court, the Cabinet, the Legislature and the Board of Regents, ladies and gentlemen—

I made the mistake the other day of quipping to a reporter that this doctor was not going to make house calls. I saw Representative Tony Fontana that evening and repeated the quip. Mr. Fontana straightened me out. He said there is one house, this House, where I would be making calls. And, of course, he was right and I hope he will continue to be right for a while yet.

Ever since the first announcement of today's ceremony, my advice has been solicited about various imaginary aches, pains and other ailments. George Firestone gave me this all-purpose answer, which he said had served the medical profession well. Senator Firestone said: "Tell them to take two aspirin and call you again in the morning."

I want to thank Florida State University, the Board of Regents and President Marshall for this very special honor. I want to thank each of you for being here. I want particularly to thank Mr. Chief Justice Carlton, who drew most of the audience.

When President Marshall told me what Florida State University intended to do, he set in motion a chain of memories—memories of people who have befriended me and thus largely are responsible for my being at this place today.

Some of these have left this world—Stanmore Cawthon, Herbert Bayer, Fred Strozier, Justice Glenn Terrell, McGregor Smith, Dr. Doak Campbell and Dorothy Morris among them. But I am exceedingly pleased that others are still with us and a number are here today. I will not impose upon your patience to call the roll but I would be less than thoughtful if I did not single out a few and I hope the others will be understanding of the limitation of time.

I am delighted to see the then young Tallahassee lawyer who introduced a fledgling Miami newsman so enthusiastically to the other Florida that he mightily influenced my decision to move here—Justice B. K. Roberts. Justice Roberts has helped me in many, many ways over the years of our friendship—not the least of these being the uniting of Joan and me in marriage. I shall always be grateful to B. K. and Mary Roberts.

And I am delighted that Mrs. Glenn Terrell is here. Let me give you one personal example of the practical friendship of the Terrells. Once, when I was confined for a month to a darkened room because of eye trouble, Justice Terrell took over the writing of my column "Cracker Politics" and Mrs. Terrell sacrificed the Terrell family's meat allowance—it was during the rationing days of the Second World War—so I might have the pleasure of an unexpected steak.

And there is Justice Richard W. Ervin, who for years tutored me on State government and collected quips and anecdotes which enlivened so many "Cracker Politics" columns.

There, too, is Dr. Dorothy Dodd, the State Librarian-emeritus. A professional historian, she is mainly responsible for whatever reputation I enjoy as an amateur historian. I am delighted to have this opportunity to make public acknowledgement of my debt to Dr. Dodd.

I am glad, too, to be able to make public acknowledgement of my debt to three State School Superintendents—Colin English, Thomas D. Bailey and Floyd T. Christian—for having made it possible for four million boys and girls to use The Florida Handbook since the first copies reached public school libraries in 1947.

And I am pleased for the turns of fate which have placed on the rostrum today a man whose private sharing of knowledge often made it possible for me to analyze political situations and deliver parliamentary judgments with an appearance of astuteness—Florida's legislator of the century, Senate President Mallory E. Horne.

But there is also on the rostrum today a person who humbled me as a political seer—perhaps Senator Horne was out of town that day and I did not have an opportunity to consult him. Anyway, a member of the Capitol Press Corps sought my counsel on whether he should leave his press job to take on campaign public relations for a candidate for Governor. I replied with smug assurance that being associated with Senator Reubin Askew in a campaign surely would be a grand experience—but what would the newsman do after the first primary?

I'm somewhat distressed at the emphasis placed on the fact that I'm a high school drop-out. I certainly don't want to encourage anyone to quit school.

Insofar as today's journalism is concerned, I really don't believe my performance could be repeated. My colleagues of the Capitol Press Club—I'm an honorary life member of the club—tell me that newspapers now demand not only a college diploma as a credential of learning but that they also require the applicant to pass a battery of aptitude and psychological tests.

Also, I daresay few journalism schools even today could match the professors of the city rooms of the Miami News and the Miami Herald and the Florida bureau of the Associated Press. Frank Malone, John Pennekamp and Sam Morton taught in the tough publish or perish days of Florida's double-depression.

There were three grand opportunities to learn about people and things, and I have been privileged to have the advantage of each such opportunity.

The first is to be a general assignments reporter for a newspaper or wire service with an imaginative, resourceful and stimulating craftsman for a city editor or news editor.

The second was, possessing the confidence of successive Chairmen, to have been able to watch at very close range, the manipulations of the legislative process in the Committee on Rules and Calendar in the old, pre-reform days.

And the third is to be able to eye the Committee on Appropriations or, as the Senate now calls its twin-committee, the Committee on Ways and Means. The control of the purse affords a birdseye view of the ramifications of the State government and knowledge of the levers of power among the State's movers and shakers.

It is small wonder, indeed, that fifteen of the nineteen Governors of this century served an apprenticeship in the Legislature, for the Legislature provides each perceptive member with sufficient knowledge about the State, its government and even of local sources of pride and problem, that any non-legislator has a tremendous disadvantage in any contest for Governor.

Speaking once again of newspapers, I want to mention an experience which changed my approach to writing about people in government. The Miami Herald once ran an article on the hobbies of its writers and editors. My hobby was described as "needlework." This was a bad joke, for the innocent who wrote the piece did not realize this needlework referred to the tattooing I gleefully did on the skins of defenseless politicians.

Later I was appointed head of the State Advertising Commission under a Governor unpopular with some of the press. I am proud of the fact that, with Carl Floyd of Haines City and others, we instituted Florida's first real summer advertising campaign and brought about the end of the season in the state's tourism. The old winter season became a year-round season.

But several of the daily newspapers gave me so uncomfortable a time by way of striking at the Governor that I left my bed around four o'clock one sleepless night. I drove to the Capitol and slipped my resignation under the outer door of the Governor's office. I just couldn't wait a few hours longer to burst out of that hot kitchen.

As a result of that experience, I know that I wrote with far more compassion and understanding about people in government. Perhaps that qualifies me to be a Doctor of Humane Letters.

I was very fortunate in that I came to Tallahassee when I did, for there were men and women still living whose sharp memories bridged the years of three-fourths of Florida's statehood. To be able to listen to people who had actively participated in events which already were certified history, that was a rich experience indeed.

Those sessions whetted my interest in how and why Floridians got where we are today. The phrase for all that past history is "our heritage." But the trouble in Florida was that so many of us had moved here and thought of some place else as "back home"—our heritage was the heritage of Illinois or Ohio or Georgia. Even now, more than half of the citizens of Florida were born elsewhere.

We knew about Plymouth Rock and Jamestown but we failed to realize that Florida, our native or adopted home, had a longer span of unbroken history than any other state.

Everything around us—our heritage—is the result of decisions and indecisions made and not made. Cities are located where they are because of some argument or dispute, some calculation or miscalculation. The past is all about us, particularly in this old capitol, visibly and invisibly controlling our lives. And when we are gone, our works and dreams will be here shaping the lives of those who come after us.

So it was, in part, this fascination with our heritage which launched me into writing a column that eventually grew into a handbook and, in turn, into the promotion of a collection of documentary photographs so the Floridians of today and tomorrow may see how Florida's people and places of yesterday looked.

I have been lucky in that I have been able to do the things in life that interested me. A lot of it happened because I happened to be in the right place at the right moment. And much of that luck resulted from the unselfish friendship given me by people in this Chamber today.

What of the future? I hope to revise the Handbook again. I have promised to deliver by this Fall the manuscript of a history of Florida place names. And I am committed, by a resolution of the House of Representatives, to writing a history of the Florida Legislature. This I hope to do when I become Clerk-emeritus. Each of you may regard yourselves as prospective characters in that book. So, when my time comes, I hope I shall be found at my typewriter.

Traveling by train to a national political convention in 1940, I chanced across this passage from the Bible which has recurred again and again in my thoughts as watchwords for a public servant:

Micah asked: "What doth the Lord require of thee but to do justly and to love mercy and to walk humbly with thy God?"

Thank you all so very much for sharing with me and my family and dear friends the honor of today and the memories it has stirred for me. I hope it has caused each of you to realize that you, too, are marchers in the parade of history.

President Horne: Now for some remarks from a man who, I think, history will record as one of the great quiet leaders of this session, your Speaker Terrell Sessums.

Speaker Sessums: Thank you, Mr. President. I think all of us are full of pride to be present on this occasion of honor for our friend, the distinguished Clerk of this House, Allen Morris. Let me at this time introduce some special guests who are here with us on this occasion when Allen Morris is honored by The Florida State University and I think, by all of the people of Florida.

To my left, we have the distinguished Chairman and Members of the Board of Regents of Florida and the Chancellor of the State University System, who have honored us all and Allen Morris in particular with their presence today. I would like these ladies and gentlemen to please stand and be recognized.

To my right, we have Mrs. Stanley Marshall, the very lovely wife of President Stanley Marshall. We have some other longtime friends of the Clerk: Mrs. Ellen K. Whiteside of Miami; Miss Jeanne Bellamy of Miami; Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Fullerton of Miami; Mrs. B. K. Roberts of Tallahassee; former Justice Stephen C. O'Connell, President of the University of Florida; a gentleman known, I think, to all the Members of this House, our former Speaker, E. C. Rowell of Wildwood; former Governor and Mrs. LeRoy Collins.

We also have members of the Clerk's family: his daughter, Martha, of Atlanta, her husband Kermit B. Marsh, and their three children, Beth, Susan, and Andrew; Allen's son, David of Tallahassee with his wife, Connie. Martha and David are the children of the Clerk and the late Dorothy Morris. And the Clerk's wife and friend of ours, Joan Morris.

We are pleased to have with us also on this occasion, the mother of the Governor, Mrs. Alberta Askew.

Perhaps interestingly enough, you may have noted that Joan, Martha, Connie and David are all graduates of the Florida State University.

President Horne: The eyes of the Nation honor us by viewing our distinguished Governor, himself a by-product of this House of Representatives and of the Senate. We are all proud of his great leadership and of nobility of purpose, the Honorable Reuben Askew, Governor of Florida.

The Governor: Mr. President, Mr. Speaker, Mr. Chief Justice, Dr. and Mrs. Morris, President Marshall, members of the Cabinet, Supreme Court of Florida, President pro tempore, Speaker pro tempore, Governor Collins, former Speakers of this House, Chairman Daniel and members of the Board of Regents, members of the Senate and House, our families, and ladies and gentlemen:

I'd like to begin by expressing my gratitude to you for giving me this chance to participate in this very meaningful occasion. I'd like to begin by saying that I appreciate very much the remarks of our distinguished Chief Justice as he seeks to fulfill his responsibility in Florida's government.

It's a personal pleasure for me to welcome Allen Morris on behalf of myself and the distinguished President of the Senate as a new fellow alumnus of Florida State University. I want you to know, Dr. Morris, that you have arrived. Not just because you have received a degree from a prestigious university, the Florida State University, but you had a respectful number of the Capitol Press Corps who even stood for you when you received that.

My relationship with Allen Morris goes back a great deal further than I think that he even remembers. For as a student at Florida State University in the School of Public Administration with one of the most beloved faculty members I think ever served on the staff of any university, Dr. Wilson Doyle, I had the opportunity of getting to know Allen Morris as a distinguished student of Florida government. So he has had a great influence on many of us in political life today that most persons don't fully appreciate. Certainly this was true in my own case.

I also recall as far back as my earliest days in politics looking forward every Sunday to reading his column called "Cracker Politics." He had a knack of writing those columns in a way that made everyone feel that the world of politics was not only exciting, but rewarding as well. He certainly indicated to you that he received several anecdotes from the Supreme Court to enliven the day, and I want you to know, Allen, they are still enlivening our days.

In all seriousness, since I request advisory opinions from time to time, we are very proud of our Supreme Court and I might take the particular liberty in singling out the dean of our Court, who is recognized throughout our great country as a leading jurist, B. K. Roberts, and I think it was a tribute both to him and to Florida that his organization of presiding Chief Justices throughout the country amended their bylaws so that he could serve in a very special capacity. So we are very proud of our Court, and proud of our Chief Justice and our dean at this time.

Allen Morris was one of the first correspondents in Tallahassee, and he exposed some of the ills of government and inspired reform.

But he also saw the brighter side of public service and, with the same vigor with which he attacked the ills, he wrote about some of the real achievements in Tallahassee.

Through his words, many of us learned of the things that government was doing and dreamed of the things that government could do.

For that, Allen, I want to personally thank you on this special day.

The Degree of Doctor of Humane Letters conferred upon you today is certainly appropriate. In fact, I can think of no one who has earned any degree as much as you have earned this one.

I think it reflects credit upon the faculty and the committee who selected you to receive this degree. For I believe that you are the all-time outstanding student of Florida government.

Your "Florida Handbook" is the Bible of Florida political and governmental life. Without it, many of us politicians, newsmen, students and citizens would have a difficult time catching up and keeping up with Florida's government.

Fortunately, for all of us, Allen Morris came to Tallahassee three decades ago, when minds were still alive with tales of reconstruction and other periods of Florida's past.

We used to turn to Allen, unofficially, for his interpretation of the rules when we found ourselves entangled in a parliamentary snarl.

And I think it's a particular credit to him that in those times when these little select committees were appointed, that every Speaker and every President has called upon from time to time, that he was always considered sort of as a final authority. Not just a final authority in parliamentary procedure, but a final authority in terms of the integrity of a ruling. And I think the Florida House of Representatives, when it chose to honor him in such a way as to become one of its officers, reflected great credit upon itself as a body and upon our State.

Today, the House has the privilege of turning to Allen for his official guidance. Since his appointment in 1966, he has been a tremendous influence for good government in Florida.

And, for that, we all thank you today, Allen, and offer our sincere congratulations on your well-deserved degree. Congratulations.

On motion by Representative Dubbin, remarks of the participants in the honorary degree ceremony were ordered spread upon the Journal.

Benediction by Representative Robert M. Johnson:

Today we have paused to write into history a high honor bestowed upon one of your sons.

No man serves our state better or loves it more than Allen Morris. No person whose life he has touched cannot but say, "I am a better person for knowing this man."

How easy it is to believe in you, our Father, when we see the example set by this man—always the kind word—always the helping hand—always going the second mile for any who seek his help.

Today a great university has elevated its stature by honoring Allen Morris—but to those who know and love him he is and has been the master scholar, the wise professor, truly doctor of this house—and for that we are eternally grateful.

May your blessings flow to him and his loved ones all of their days.

The Committee previously appointed escorted the Governor from the rostrum and from the House chamber, followed by the Justices of the Supreme Court and the Cabinet.

On motion by Senator Barron, the joint meeting dissolved at 2:50 p.m. and the Senate withdrew from the House Chamber.

Pursuant to the motion by Senator Barron, the Senate adjourned upon the dissolution of the joint meeting to reconvene at 8:30 a.m. for the purpose of introduction and reference of resolutions, memorials, bills and joint resolutions and thereafter to reconvene at 9:00 a.m. on April 10, 1973.
